DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1, 2, 5-19, and 22-36 allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

2. The prior art taken singly or in combination do not teach or suggest a method comprising dividing an image into a plurality of zones; storing each zone by a starting point of each zone; tracking revised zones using the starting point of each revised zone; updating only the revised zones on the image; wherein each zone has the same dimensions and number of pixels as the other zones, as recited in Claims 1, 18, and 36. Claims 2, 5-17, 19, and 22-30 depend from these claims, and therefore also contain allowable subject matter.

The prior art also does not teach a system comprising a shadow memory in the memory comprising a plurality of zones; a zone grid in the memory for tracking by a starting point of each zone whether changes occur each zones; a processing unit for rendering revisions to the shadow memory and tracking by a starting point of each zone in the zone grid which zones of the plurality of zones are revised; a frame buffer to which the processing unit, based on the information stored in the zone grid, writes only those zones that have been revised from the shadow memory to the frame buffer, as recited in Claim 31. Claims 32-35 depend from Claim 31, and therefore also contain allowable subject matter.

3. The closest prior art (Nobutani US005613103A) teaches a method for updating the image on a computer display device, the method comprising tracking which zones are revised; and updating only the revised zones on the display device (execute a partial rewrite of updating only the changed display data on the display screen, Col. 1, lines 50-54). However, Nobutani does not teach storing each zone of the plurality of zones by a starting point of each zone, and tracking the revised zones using the starting point of each revised zone; wherein each zone has the same dimensions and number of pixels as the other zones.

4. Another prior art (Shetter US006342890B1) teaches a method for updating an image on a computer display device, the method comprising logically dividing the image into a plurality of zones (blocks of source sub-pixels to be accessed are shifted to account for a left side bearing remainder in the final display of the character, Col. 5, lines 1-5). However, Shetter does not teach tracking which zones are revised and updating only the revised zones on the image.

5. Another prior art (Chauvel US004814756A) teaches storing each zone of the plurality of zones by a starting point of each zone, and tracking the zones using the starting point of each zone (Col. 3, lines 31-44, Col. 3, line 59-Col. 4, line 3). However, Chauvel does not teach tracking which zones are revised and updating only the revised zones on the image; wherein each zone has the same dimensions and number of pixels as the other zones.

6. Another prior art (Kusama US006633685B1) teaches that each zone of the plurality of zones has the same dimensions and number of pixels as the other zones (Col. 7, lines 14-21).

However, Kusama does not teach updating only the revised zones on the image.

7. Another prior art (Van Hook US006675239B1) teaches a system comprising a memory (406, Figure 4); a shadow memory in the memory; a frame buffer to which the processing unit, writes data from the shadow memory to the frame buffer; and a display device (617, Figure 6B) coupled to the frame buffer (Col. 5, lines 58-65; Col. 6, lines 62-65). However, Van Hook does not teach updating only the revised zones on the image.

8. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Prior Art of Record

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

1. Nobutani (US005613103A) teaches executing a partial rewrite of updating only the changed display data on the display screen (Col. 1, lines 50-54).

2. Shetter (US006342890B1) teaches improving access to stored blocks of display data (Col. 1, lines 9-15).

3. Chauvel (US004814756A) teaches storing each zone of the plurality of zones by a starting point of each zone, and tracking the zones using the starting point of each zone (Col. 3, lines 31-44, Col. 3, line 59-Col. 4, line 3).
4. Kusama (US006633685B1) teaches an image processing method which allows a mosaic image to be generated at higher speed with a small amount of memory (Col. 1, lines 35-38).
5. Van Hook (US006675239B1) teaches a method of providing commands to a command memory where a graphics processor will have commands available for execution as long as there are commands available (Col. 2, lines 48-51).
